

القاعدة التاسعة والعشرون

وَاللَّهُ أَعْلَمُ بِأَعْدَائِكُمْ
And Allah is most knowing of your enemies

Allah knows your enemies, whether they are hidden or apparent, whether you know them or not. It is important to remember that Allah knows them and will protect you from their evil, and give you victory over them.

This ayah came for the People of the Book, the Yahud and the Nasara. They should keep their Book above their desires, but they purchased misguidance instead, and want the believers to be misguided too. So Allah gives the b support that of they have someone trying to mislead them, Allah knows about them. It is enough for anyone that Allah is the Wali, the Guardian and Companion.

✿ This great principle is connected to people. People are friends and foes. Some want good for you and others want evil to visit you.

✿ It is a source of comfort for you that Allah knows your friends and foes, even if you are unaware of them.

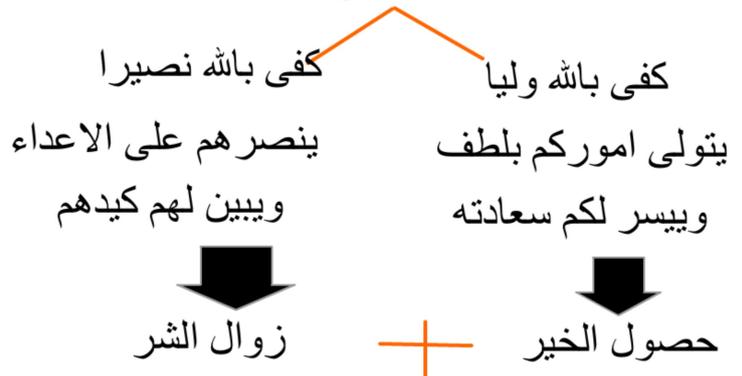

✿ There are two kinds of enemies; they may be hidden, or apparent.

The apparent enemies are the disbelievers, those who announce their hatred for you, and want to declare war against you. You can recognize them, they are very obvious. There are a group of disbelievers who want to fight with you, and if they do, you can fight back. Another group of disbelievers want peace, so you must also deal with them peacefully. Iblees is also a clear enemy. He has announced his enmity and hatred, and Allah has warned us about him.

The hidden enemies are more dangerous; they are the hypocrites. They are Muslim in name only, and will betray the believers in any chance they get. Their enmity is worse than that of the disbelievers. Because their outer appearance is that of a Muslim, they try to destroy Islam from inside, with deception and intrigues. The details of their characteristics are given to us by Allah very clearly in the Qura'an.

✿ Don't be deceived by the munafiqeen. They want to mislead you, and they plot day and night for it. It is sufficient for you that Allah is your Wali, your Guardian and Companion, He has taken charge of you with gentleness. He will make all matters easy for you. Allah loves you, and will bring all the goodness to you. He wants you to be happy. Allah will give you victory against your enemies, and expose their plots.

You must believe that even if there are hundreds of enemies around you, even the whole world, Allah is sufficient for you. This is the solution to overcome the enemies.
